Subject: 1006-AA51, 43 CFR part 429, BOR-2008-000443

Paragraphs 439.32(b) & (h) need to be changed.

If a renewal of a permit is due, or if the BOR believes some dock repair is necessary, it must be the BOR's responsibility to give adequate and timely notice to the holder of the permit and then allow 360 days for the permit holder to take corrective action, or appeal the BOR's request.

Because of the huge expense, Many, or perhaps most docks are shared with two or more families. One family leaves, or the person responsible for coordinating the permit fees and repairs dies or leaves; how are the other parties to know about a problem if they are not given proper and timely notice?

Because Lake Cascade is only really usable for approximately 2½ months of the year, is frozen or under snow for approximately 7 months of the year and low water for the rest of the year, 360 days after notice is received must be allowed for the permit holder to make or appeal the requested corrective action.

Very truly yours,

Marvin and Janice Gabert
