

I would like to register a complaint regarding the blinding high intensity headlights on many of todays newer cars. I am unable to block the glare from my rear view mirror and the oncoming traffic creating a night-time driving hazard for everyone. The new headlights are bright even when reflected in the rear-view mirror that is turned down for glare. I request that standards return to the former intensity lamps to insure driver safety after dark.