

419054

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

06 OCT 10 AM 10:10

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275) - 1359

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Daniel Brown

Home Address:

584 W 152 St 5C
New York N.Y. 10031

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

Paul & Helen Carroll
22 Watermint Place
The Woodlands, TX 77384

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

(Your Address) Name: JIN WEN CHEN
176 LINDA LN
EDISON NJ 08820

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

It is my understanding that the Department will soon be deciding on an award of new authority to competing U.S. airlines for 2007 service between the U.S. and China. I strongly support Continental Airlines' application for the right to inaugurate service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China.

Currently, no U.S. passenger airline serves Shanghai from the New York/New Jersey area or from any point on the U.S. east coast. This lack of service by a U.S. flag carrier through a gateway on the east coast is a serious deficit DOT should address. Given the success of Continental's current mainland China service to Beijing and its recent recognition by JD Power and Associates as providing the highest-ranking Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America, Continental is the only choice to rectify this service gap. Continental's proposal to initiate daily service to Shanghai will provide convenient nonstop or easy, single connection service to our clients and employees traveling for either business or leisure from numerous east coast points including the New York/New Jersey region and Shanghai, China.

Shanghai is a rapidly growing economic, cultural, and financial center of China and all of Asia. Travelers will benefit greatly from an additional U.S. competitor serving Shanghai and an additional U.S. gateway point in the largest market for U.S.-Shanghai traffic, as Continental proposes to do. As we have seen other carriers pull down service from the New York area to Asia, we believe Continental's proposal is also the only long-term viable and reliable proposal.

Continental has proven its ability to serve long-haul Asian markets from New York/Newark Liberty international airport with successful nonstop service to Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Beijing. Furthermore, with more than 400 daily departures from Liberty to over 150 nonstop destination throughout the Americas, Asia and across the Atlantic, Continental's strong operation and safe, reliable award winning service make the carrier uniquely qualified to provide consumers and our clients with superior service and effective new competition to Shanghai.

When making your decision between competing applications, I hope that you will provide the entire New York/New Jersey region with nonstop U.S. flag carrier access to Shanghai via the best airline choice, Continental Airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

"You cannot substitute personal experience."

September 27, 2005

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

It is my understanding that the Department will soon be deciding on an award of new authority to competing U.S. airlines for 2007 service between the U.S. and China. I strongly support Continental Airlines' application for the right to inaugurate service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China.

Currently, no U.S. passenger airline serves Shanghai from the New York/New Jersey area or from any point on the U.S. east coast. This lack of service by a U.S. flag carrier through a gateway on the east coast is a serious deficit DOT should address. Given the success of Continental's current mainland China service to Beijing and its recent recognition by JD Power and Associates as providing the highest ranking Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America, Continental is the only choice to rectify this service gap. Continental's proposal to initiate daily service to Shanghai will provide convenient nonstop or easy, single connection service to our clients and employees traveling for either business or leisure from numerous east coast points including the New York/New Jersey region and Shanghai, China.

Shanghai is a rapidly growing economic, cultural and financial center of China and all of Asia. Travelers will benefit greatly from an additional U.S. competitor serving Shanghai and an additional U.S. gateway point in the largest market for U.S.-Shanghai traffic, as Continental proposes to do. As we have seen other carriers pull down service from the New York area to Asia, we believe Continental's proposal is also the only long term viable and reliable proposal.

Continental has proven its ability to serve long-haul Asian markets from New York/Newark Liberty international airport with successful nonstop service to Tokyo, Hong Kong and Beijing. Furthermore, with more than 400 daily departures from Liberty to over 150 nonstop destination throughout the Americas, Asia and across the Atlantic, Continental's strong operation and safe, reliable award winning service make the carrier uniquely qualified to provide consumers and our clients with superior service and effective new competition to Shanghai.

When making your decision between competing applications, I hope that you will provide the entire New York/New Jersey region with nonstop U.S. flag carrier access to Shanghai via the best airline choice, Continental Airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Craig P. China

Craig P. China, President

C. Derek China

C. DEREK CHINA, VICE PRESIDENT

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration

Sincerely,

Jay Coburn

Home Address:

1800 N. ANDREWS AVE #7E
FT. LAUDERDALE, FL
33311

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

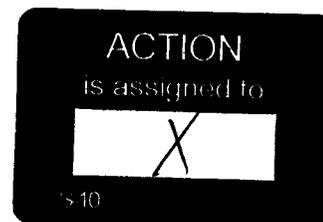

Sincerely,

Home Address:

Mr. John Drake
40518 Cimarron Way
Magnolia, TX 77354-4610

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

Farrell
312 Saint Cloud Avenue
West Orange, N. J. 07052-2518

653 Tumble Creek Lane
Fallsbrook, CA 92028
September 18, 2006

U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Washington, DC 20590

Dear Secretary,

As retired airline personnel and parents of a Continental Airlines employee, we are always interested in what is happening with the airlines.

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to serve New York/Newark - Shanghai, China beginning early next year. Continental has proved its reliability on other international routes such as New York/Newark - Beijing, China, so we believe the company has shown they earned the right to be awarded the New York/Newark - Shanghai route.

Thank you for considering Continental the airline of our choice, and we hope it is yours too!

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Marvia Gillson

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

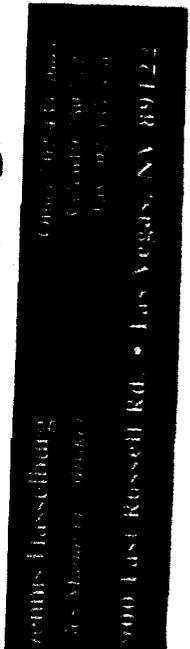

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Dennis Hasselberg".

Home Address:

3340 OLIPHANT
SAN DIEGO CA 92106
619-750-7227

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

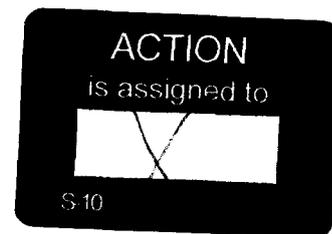

Sincerely,

Raymond W. Hope 70051

Home Address:

101 Piney Woods Ct.
202
Houston, TX, 77077

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Sandra S. Hornbaker

Home Address:

*4416 Steed Terrace
Winter Park, FL 32792*

Secretary
U. S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark - Shanghai Application

(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As a Continental customer, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental has worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet the airline's customer needs. With no U.S. carrier nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has a service deficit from the New York region as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

Continental was recently ranked by its customers as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America for the service the airline provides from the time of booking to the end of the journey at baggage claim. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing service already offered by other U.S. carriers currently serving the Shanghai market.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its many thousands of employees. The Department of Transportation's decision is easy; Continental Airlines and nonstop New York/Newark - Shanghai service. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Shelley Milage

Home Address:

*4164 Indian Trail
Oxford, NC 27565*

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

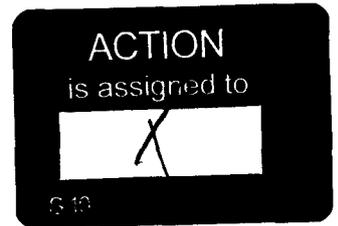

Sincerely,

Trudy Schultz 9/30/06

Home Address:

*3308 Shearwater Ct.
Woodbridge, Va. 22192*

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

(Your Address)
135 ELM ST.
TENAFLY, NJ 07670

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

It is my understanding that the Department will soon be deciding on an award of new authority to competing U.S. airlines for 2007 service between the U.S. and China. I strongly support Continental Airlines' application for the right to inaugurate service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China.

Currently, no U.S. passenger airline serves Shanghai from the New York/New Jersey area or from any point on the U.S. east coast. This lack of service by a U.S. flag carrier through a gateway on the east coast is a serious deficit DOT should address. Given the success of Continental's current mainland China service to Beijing and its recent recognition by JD Power and Associates as providing the highest-ranking Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America, Continental is the only choice to rectify this service gap. Continental's proposal to initiate daily service to Shanghai will provide convenient nonstop or easy, single connection service to our clients and employees traveling for either business or leisure from numerous east coast points including the New York/New Jersey region and Shanghai, China.

Shanghai is a rapidly growing economic, cultural, and financial center of China and all of Asia. Travelers will benefit greatly from an additional U.S. competitor serving Shanghai and an additional U.S. gateway point in the largest market for U.S.-Shanghai traffic, as Continental proposes to do. As we have seen other carriers pull down service from the New York area to Asia, we believe Continental's proposal is also the only long-term viable and reliable proposal.

Continental has proven its ability to serve long-haul Asian markets from New York/Newark Liberty international airport with successful nonstop service to Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Beijing. Furthermore, with more than 400 daily departures from Liberty to over 150 nonstop destination throughout the Americas, Asia and across the Atlantic, Continental's strong operation and safe, reliable award winning service make the carrier uniquely qualified to provide consumers and our clients with superior service and effective new competition to Shanghai.

When making your decision between competing applications, I hope that you will provide the entire New York/New Jersey region with nonstop U.S. flag carrier access to Shanghai via the best airline choice, Continental Airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

THOMAS STILD 03/15/2006

September 21, 2006

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

845 Alexander Road
Princeton, New Jersey 08540

Tel: 609 759 8888
Fax: 609 759 8900

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

It is my understanding that the Department will soon be deciding on an award of new authority to competing U.S. airlines for 2007 service between the U.S. and China. As President of Sycamore Ventures, a New Jersey business with one half of its operations based in Shanghai, I strongly support Continental Airlines' application for the right to inaugurate service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China.

Currently, no U.S. passenger airline serves Shanghai from the New York/New Jersey area or from any point on the U.S. east coast. This lack of service by a U.S. flag carrier through a gateway on the east coast is a serious deficit DOT should address. Given the success of Continental's current mainland China service to Beijing and its recent recognition by JD Power and Associates as providing the highest ranking Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America, Continental is the only choice to rectify this service gap. Continental's proposal to initiate daily service to Shanghai will provide convenient nonstop or easy, single connection service to our clients and employees traveling for either business or leisure from numerous east coast points including the New York/New Jersey region and Shanghai, China.

Shanghai is a rapidly growing economic, cultural and financial center of China and all of Asia. Travelers will benefit greatly from an additional U.S. competitor serving Shanghai and an additional U.S. gateway point in the largest market for U.S.-Shanghai traffic, as Continental proposes to do. As we have seen other carriers pull down service from the New York area to Asia, we believe Continental's proposal is also the only long term viable and reliable proposal.

Continental has proven its ability to serve long-haul Asian markets from New York/Newark Liberty international airport with successful nonstop service to Tokyo, Hong Kong and Beijing. Furthermore, with more than 400 daily departures from Liberty to over 150 nonstop destination throughout the Americas, Asia and across the Atlantic, Continental's strong operation and safe, reliable award winning service make the carrier uniquely qualified to provide consumers and our clients with superior service and effective new competition to Shanghai.

When making your decision between competing applications, I hope that you will provide the entire New York/New Jersey region with nonstop U.S. flag carrier access to Shanghai via the best airline choice, Continental Airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

John R. Whitman

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

Richard B. Zamora ED.D
5000 Milwee #78
Houston, Texas 77092

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

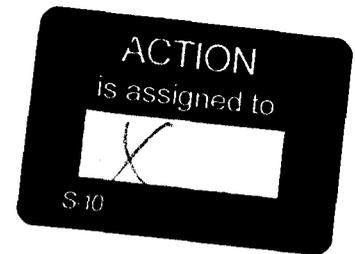

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address

[Handwritten Signature]
560 Woods Creek Ln
Algonquin, IL 60102

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

4416 STEED TERRACE
WINTER PARK FL 32792

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

9/13/06

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

5003 Preakness Place
Bethlehem, Pa. 18020
darbsteve@aol.com

Secretary

U.S. Department of Transportation

400 Seventh Street, SW

Suite 10200

Washington, DC 20590

(Your Address)

135 ELM ST.

TENAFLY, NJ 07670

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application

(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

It is my understanding that the Department will soon be deciding on an award of new authority to competing U.S. airlines for 2007 service between the U.S. and China. I strongly support Continental Airlines' application for the right to inaugurate service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China.

Currently, no U.S. passenger airline serves Shanghai from the New York/New Jersey area or from any point on the U.S. east coast. This lack of service by a U.S. flag carrier through a gateway on the east coast is a serious deficit DOT should address. Given the success of Continental's current mainland China service to Beijing and its recent recognition by JD Power and Associates as providing the highest-ranking Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America, Continental is the only choice to rectify this service gap. Continental's proposal to initiate daily service to Shanghai will provide convenient nonstop or easy, single connection service to our clients and employees traveling for either business or leisure from numerous east coast points including the New York/New Jersey region and Shanghai, China.

Shanghai is a rapidly growing economic, cultural, and financial center of China and all of Asia. Travelers will benefit greatly from an additional U.S. competitor serving Shanghai and an additional U.S. gateway point in the largest market for U.S.-Shanghai traffic, as Continental proposes to do. As we have seen other carriers pull down service from the New York area to Asia, we believe Continental's proposal is also the only long-term viable and reliable proposal.

Continental has proven its ability to serve long-haul Asian markets from New York/Newark Liberty international airport with successful nonstop service to Tokyo, Hong Kong, and Beijing. Furthermore, with more than 400 daily departures from Liberty to over 150 nonstop destination throughout the Americas, Asia and across the Atlantic, Continental's strong operation and safe, reliable award winning service make the carrier uniquely qualified to provide consumers and our clients with superior service and effective new competition to Shanghai.

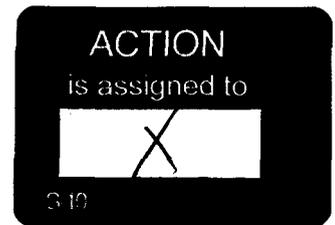

When making your decision between competing applications, I hope that you will provide the entire New York/New Jersey region with nonstop U.S. flag carrier access to Shanghai via the best airline choice, Continental Airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Phyllis S. Lee 09/09/2006

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

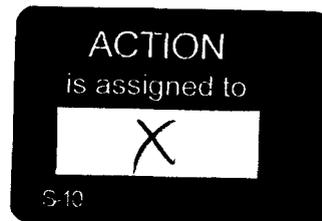

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

2471 Covington Way
Pearland, Texas 77584

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

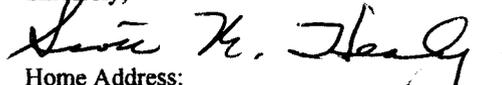

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

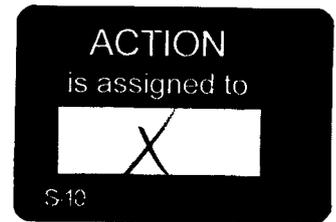

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:
309 52nd AVE DRIVE EAST
BRADENTON, FL 34203

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

6309 RIDGE HAVEN RD
GREENSBORO, N.C. 27410

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

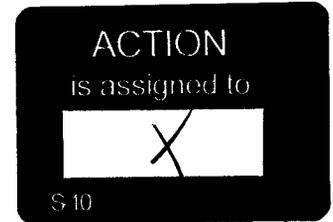

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

2814 Forest Garden Dr.
Kingwood TX 77345

Secretary
U.S. Department of Transportation
400 Seventh Street, SW
Suite 10200
Washington, DC 20590

Re: Continental Airlines New York/Newark – Shanghai Application
(Docket OST-2006-25275)

Dear Secretary:

Continental Airlines has applied for authority to operate daily Boeing 777 service between New York/Newark and Shanghai, China beginning spring 2007. As an employee of Continental Airlines, I respectfully urge you to grant Continental this authority.

Continental's employees have worked hard at providing clean, safe and reliable transportation and professional customer service to a growing list of international and domestic destinations that meet consumer needs. Continental's initial entrance into the Chinese market began in June 2005 with service between New York/Newark and Beijing, China. This service has been a success since its inception, with load factors reaching 85% just one year later in June 2006. The fact is, hundreds of thousands of local O&D passengers and connecting passengers from numerous points behind Newark Liberty International airport have taken advantage of Continental's Beijing service. New Continental Shanghai service in 2007 promises to be as successful as Beijing and will provide competitive benefits to hundreds of thousands of customers traveling to Shanghai and southern China. With no nonstop or single-plane service at New York/Newark, Shanghai has an even greater service deficit from the New York region than Beijing did in 2005, as well as no connecting gateway anywhere on the entire U.S. east coast. As the only carrier with a hub and significant market presence in the New York area, Continental is the single best choice for filling the service gap between New York/Newark and other east coast points and Shanghai.

While other carriers like United and Northwest have come and gone in New York – Asia nonstop markets, Continental has started new Asian service from the region and still operates such service today. Clearly, there is no questioning Continental's commitment to its market decisions.

On June 29, 2006, JD Power and Associates Airline Satisfaction Survey ranked Continental as the highest in Customer Satisfaction Among Traditional Network Carriers in North America. Continental was ranked number one in multiple customer service areas including reservations, check-in, aircraft boarding and deplaning, baggage handling and in-flight service and crews. Additionally, Continental received the highest ratings among all business travelers surveyed by JD Power and Associates. Continental and New York/Newark are the right choice for providing new entrant competitive service to the Shanghai market and to existing Shanghai service already offered by all three other incumbent U.S. carriers, and airline customers have sent a clear message they want Continental's award winning product.

Allowing Continental to commence new competitive service to Shanghai via its New York/Newark hub is important to U.S. consumers, to Continental's continued growth and its 42,000 employees. The Department's decision is an easy one, New York/Newark's service deficit needs to be addressed and Continental is the single best choice of airlines.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Home Address:

519 South St. #107
Glendale, PA. 91202