

As a resident in close proximity to Santa Monica Airport, a general aviation airport, I strongly oppose the FAA Proposed Policy regarding Weight Restrictions. The noise and dangerous "close calls" are increasing over Santa Monica Airport and should be mitigated, not expanded.

Safety should always be the FAA's primary policy. Forcing General Aviation Airports to accept aircraft heavier than capacity of the runway and airport design defies all logic. Not only does this jeopardize the physical aspects of the airport, it endangers the lives of the aircraft occupants and all the residents in the flight path.

I urge that this policy not be implemented and the FAA use their extensive resources to promote more safety and security policies at all airports.
