

This is regarding all animales and flight. Dogs, cats and exotics including fish. I used to work for an airline so I may be aware of things that haven't been mentioned very much. Airlines treat animals as luggage or worse. The airlines don't even do anything special in getting the live creatures to and from the plane. Due to neglence many animals don't even make it to the plane. This is because the company and people are not responsible. The next item is the actual compartments on the plane. The animals are almost thrown in, sometimes in the wrong compartment. Chemicals in the plane are also a problem, no one thinks about that. The way the cages or boxes are put in they easily fall and have other items fall on them. It can be really bad for small creatures like chicks. We need legislation for protection. The airlines will not make changes unless forced.
