

The airlines already use a "market-based" rate in charging for the flights -- busy flights have either higher fares, or fewer "discount fares"
I think it makes perfect sense for the government to accept bids for the landing and take off slots, and charge a market-based surcharge for the prime time slots.