

If President Bush is serious about reducing our oil dependence, then we should not put off increasing the CAFE standards. There should be enough information to increase it today, but if the NHTSA insists there isn't, then President Bush and the NHTSA should make this their number one priority and have new proposed standards by 2002 as scheduled.